WHAT A DILEMMA!

What would you do? That's what we want to know. Here is our dilemma of the week: Even after a recent $530 million overhaul of the CTA's Brown Line, there are problems with the platforms. Specifically, the ones made of wood are rotting, splitting, warping and sagging at a rapid pace. It's so bad at the Francisco station that the CTA will have to replace the entire platform at an estimated cost of $150,000 to $175,000. So we want to know what you think the CTA should do now. Text "cta" followed by the number of your choice to 87708. We'll text you back letting you know how everyone voted.

1. Announce Brown Line renovation 2.0 and start over—anything to keep the platforms safe.
2. Get crews working in off hours around the clock—enough inconvenience already.
3. Pave the whole darn thing in gold, change the name to the Gold Line and call it an investment.

BLACK MARKET

Insiders driving up the price of a cup of coffee

MCT

WASHINGTON If you're angry that Wall Street speculators have been driving up the price you pay for gasoline, you may not want to hear that these same big investors now are pushing up the price of your cup of joe.

Grocery shoppers have seen whopping increases this year in the price of coffee, whether it's a store brand, Folgers or Maxwell House. Since spring, coffee has been selling at $7 to $8 a can in many parts of the country, or about twice the price of a gallon of gas.

The retail price of coffee in July was up 20.7 percent over the same month last year, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics, which tracks changes in grocery store prices.

Big coffee marketers have trimmed prices a bit for consumers in recent weeks, but the price of contracts for future delivery of coffee continues to rise unabated.

What gives?

Coffee-industry veterans blame financial speculators. They say they're taking advantage of global supply hiccups to drive up coffee prices by adding volatility to the trading of contracts for future delivery of coffee. It's not as debilitating to family income as high crude oil prices, but the phenomenon is the same.

"It's definitely not purely supply and demand; it's way too volatile," said Shawn Hamilton, vice president of operations and a veteran coffee buyer for Java City in Sacramento, Calif., a national wholesaler of coffee and a mid-size regional coffee roaster.

Experts say global consumption of coffee is up, particularly in China and coffee-producing Brazil. There's also been a weather-related dip in production from Colombia. These underlying supply-and-demand factors do justify higher coffee prices—just not this high. The hiccup in production and rising demand set the stage for Wall Street speculators, many of them big hedge funds that invest for the ultrawealthy, to flood into commodities markets and speculate on contracts for future delivery of coffee.

The net result distorts the price of coffee. The price of a futures contract for 37,500 pounds of coffee rose by more than 40 percent last year and has gone up by more than 57 percent this year through Aug. 19.

"It's not a true coffee market anymore, where the laws of supply and demand hold forth," said Danell Seda, a trader for Walker Coffee Trading in Houston, an importer of green coffee beans.

Growers could take a large hit

MCT

WASHINGTON Soaring coffee prices mean good times for peasant growers, but the big price tags eventually could threaten suppliers of organic and other "socially conscious" coffees.

U.S. retail coffee prices are up more than 20 percent over the past 12 months and more than 57 percent in commodity markets. It's a windfall for growers after nearly a decade of horrible prices.

"We haven't seen this kind of price in many, many years," said Linbano Cruz Alvarado, an organic grower who belongs to Union Majomut in Mexico's mountainous southern state of Chiapas. "We've seen high prices, but not this high."

But for counterintuitive reasons, these prices may be harmful.

Over the past 15 years, there's been an explosion of specialty growers who export everything from coffee beans grown without fertilizers and chemicals to coffee grown in wild bird sanctuaries. Coffee shops that offer these sorts of specialty beans are in virtually every large U.S. and European city.

Now, however, the middlemen offer better prices than some of the contracts the co-ops have entered into previously with foreign buyers.

Some farmers are taking the higher offers, leaving the co-ops struggling to get sufficient supplies and at risk of defaulting on contracts.

WE CAME. WE SAW.
WE SCREWED UP.

God shouldn't be on campaign trail

According to Michele Bachmann, Washington is not only ignoring the will of the American people, but also God's will.

"I don't know how much God has to do to get the attention of the politicians," she said at a recent campaign rally in Florida. "We've had an earthquake; we've had a hurricane. He said, 'Are you going to start listening to me here?' Listen to the American people because the American people are roaring right now."

The campaign has been trying to play the comments off as comedy, but Bachmann has made her faith such an integral part of her presidential campaign through her speeches and pledges she's signed, not all of us are so sure that was an innocent attempt at humor.

Bachmann certainly is not the only politician who invokes his or her faith in politics. Texas Gov. Rick Perry, who also is a Republican candidate for president, is a supporter of teaching creationism in schools and recently held a public prayer rally in Houston begging God to "help" America. Even President Obama, while praising New York's move to legalize same-sex marriage, stopped short of endorsing it himself.

Politicians do this because the faith-based voting bloc is such a huge part of the American electorate—perhaps even greater than you think. The last Gallup poll showed 40 percent of Americans believe humans were created by God within the past 10,000 years. Seriously. Almost as many (38 percent) believe humans have evolved from more basic organisms but with God playing a role in the process. Only 16 percent of respondents believe in secular evolution.

With that many people believing so strongly in a higher power, you can see why some politicians would play into a voting bloc that large.

But to claim to speak for God's "politics" is going too far. You're free to believe, practice and preach any faith you want in this country, but we have a separation of church and state that everyone must respect.

I have always found it ironic that 400 years ago, the pilgrims and Puritans were fleeing Europe for North America to practice their religion freely and without government intrusion, and now some religious interests find it perfectly acceptable to use government to tell people who can and cannot get married, or who should or should not have children.

I'm a card-carrying Republican, and when I say I support small government, I do not draw the line at people's personal lives. The beautiful thing about this country is not only that we're a melting pot of different cultures, faiths and ideologies, but also that we're free to live our lives any way we want without government intrusion.

That's why we're a democracy, not a theocracy. Someone needs to remind Bachmann. But as long as she's speaking for God, maybe she can tell us if he likes being blamed for dozens of hurricane-related deaths, or was that just a "joke" too?

Bob Covell is a 36-year resident of the Belair Hotel in Lakeview. Covell and others are losing their homes as two large, single-room occupancy hotels are being closed in the neighborhood. E. JASON WAMBSGANS/TRIBUNE

Different model for chronic problem

Chicago Tribune

In 1989, a group called Lakefront SRO turned a single-room occupancy hotel in Uptown into a 69-unit building that provided rooms and social services to people long teetering on the edge of homelessness.

That model—called “permanent supportive housing”—is now embraced by many advocates for the homeless. Lakefront SRO has become Mercy Housing Lakefront, an organization that has 12 permanent supportive housing buildings in Chicago providing 1,307 units to some of the city’s most vulnerable residents.

“The whole objective is to help people stabilize in their housing,” said Lisa Kuklinski, spokeswoman for the group. “Everyone that comes to us in this type of housing has had a history of housing instability, whether that’s street homelessness or doubling up or sleeping in a place that was inappropriate.”

Each building provides residents with case managers who help them with everything from learning to budget properly to finding the social services and medical care they need.

Also, residents are given employment training and taught how to advocate for themselves and become active members of the community.

The residents pay about 30 percent of whatever income they have for rent.

“We feel like these services address people holistically,” Kuklinski said. “You’re a whole person, you’re not just a homeless person. You’re a person who’s a citizen of your community just like anyone else.”

Reflecting how dire the demand for housing is, Mercy Housing Lakefront has waiting lists at all its buildings. When a new building opened in Englewood last year, Kuklinski said, more than 1,000 people applied for the 99 available units.

The group’s work is funded by a mix of city, state and federal housing programs along with private and philanthropic donations. Kuklinski said that in general it gives priority to homeless applicants who are disabled or dealing with chronic health problems.

Closing time

Occupancy hotels shut down across Chicago

Chicago Tribune

Bob Covell has been a fixture at the Belair Hotel for 36 years. Blind and living on a fixed income, Covell always found the single-room occupancy building a good fit, even as it fell into disrepair and became home in recent years to a more itinerant clientele.

But soon, Covell and the other Belair residents—a diverse mix of low-income workers, people with disabilities and elderly retirees—will be gone. Tenants are being evicted from the building and from another single-room occupancy hotel in Lakeview, the Sheffield House, forcing dozens of people with limited resources to relocate quickly in a city where day-to-day or month-to-month housing is increasingly hard to find.

“It’s taking away a home, basically,” said Covell, who is one of the few residents so far able to line up a new place to live. “There’s not a damn thing I can do about it.”

That’s largely true. Chicago once was home to many residential hotels such as the Belair, places where people living on fixed incomes or working low-paying jobs could stay without having to put up security deposits or sign leases. The tiny, sparse rooms were, in essence, a last line of defense for folks who might otherwise be homeless.

But gentrification has consumed a majority of these single-room occupancy buildings. And while groups that advocate for the homeless don’t like to lose any resources, many say that money is better spent on newer low-income housing solutions than on maintaining decrepit buildings such as the Belair and the Sheffield House.

“The model we use now is supportive housing,” said Julie Dworkin, director of policy for the Chicago Coalition for the Homeless. “The rent is subsidized so people who have little income can pay maybe 30 percent of their income for rent, and then there are services for them on site. If they have mental health or substance-abuse issues or if they need help finding jobs, they’ve got services right there. It has been shown that this type of housing is what can really get people out of chronic homelessness.”

Bennett Lawson, the 44th Ward’s deputy alderman under Tom Tunney, said the loss of the two residential hotels is concerning for Lakeview, but not unexpected.

“What we’re doing as a city and a system is moving away from this [single-room occupancy] style housing,” Lawson said. “What we want to do, ideally, is move everyone into a more stable housing situation. Studios, efficiencies, but not this residence hotel model, where some have been good and some have been awful.”

Lawyers argue for Peterson's jail release

Chicago Tribune

Drew Peterson's attorneys filed a request for his release from jail with the Illinois Supreme Court on Tuesday, as prosecutorial appeals in the highly publicized murder case have delayed his trial for more than a year.

The defense already has lost similar efforts at the trial, appellate and state Supreme Court levels, but Peterson's team argues its position only gets stronger the longer he remains in custody.

Proceedings were halted on the eve of trial nearly 14 months ago when Will County State's Attorney James Glasgow appealed a judge's ruling barring several hearsay statements that Glasgow says would help convict Peterson in the death of his third wife, Kathleen Savio.

At the time, Glasgow acknowledged that his 11th-hour legal maneuver could lead to Peterson being freed.

Peterson, 57, is charged with killing Savio, who was found dead in a dry bathtub in 2004. Officials initially ruled the death an accidental drowning, but authorities reopened the case after Stacy Peterson, Peterson's fourth wife, disappeared in October 2007.

Pace riders sent to hospital after accident

Chicago Tribune

Nearly two dozen people were taken to hospitals Tuesday with minor injuries after their Pace bus was involved in an accident on the West Side, officials said.

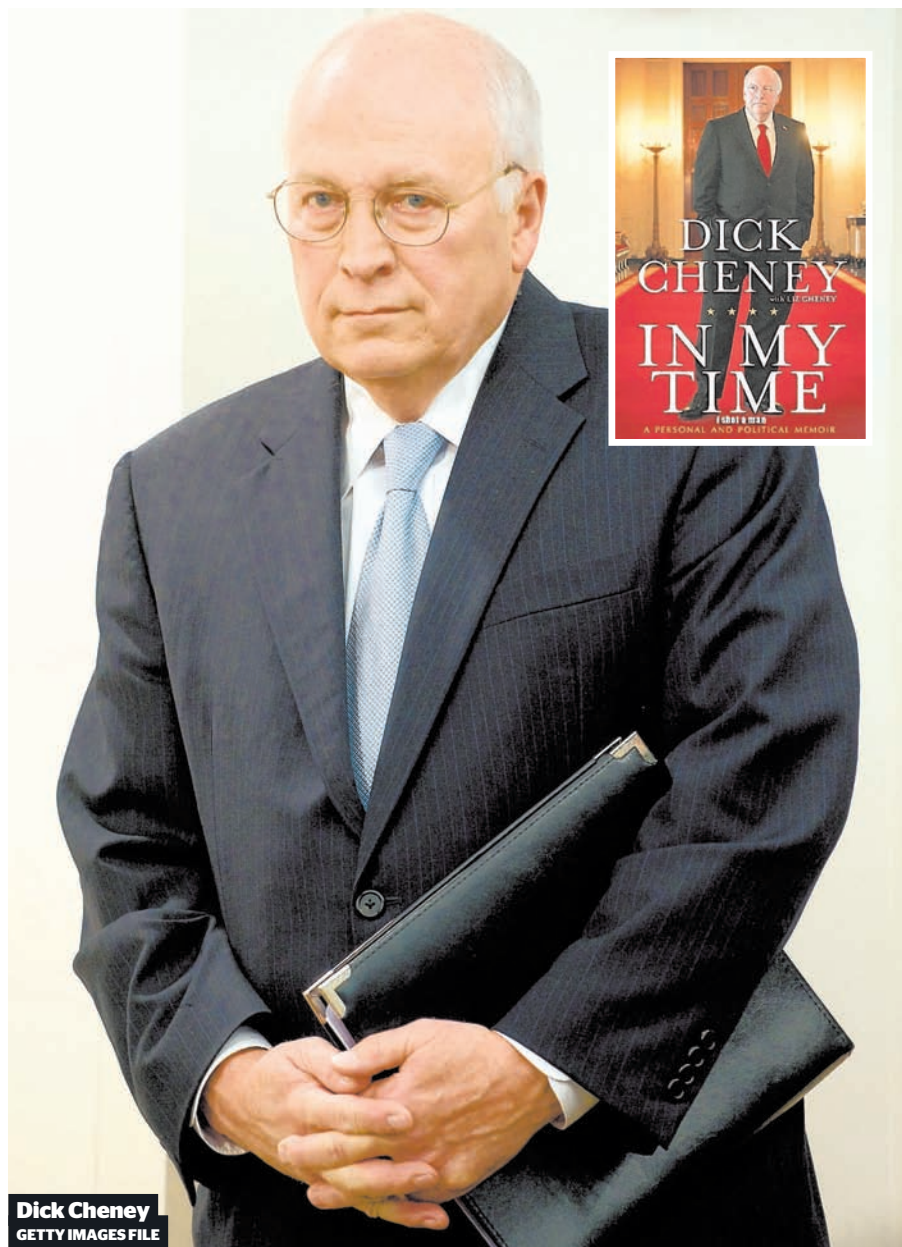

Eight people were taken in fair-to-serious condition to hospitals while the other 15 people were in good-to-fair condition, according to a Chicago Fire Department spokesman.

The accident happened at about 1 p.m. at Mayfield Avenue and Corcoran Place, officials said.

The Route 313 bus had just picked up passengers from the Austin CTA Green Line stop and had been traveling south on Mayfield when it was stopped at a light, said Patrick Wilmot, a Pace spokesman.

The bus was about to turn left and proceed westbound when it was hit by a car and sustained minor damage. The people on the bus initially said they were not injured but when ambulances arrived the said they had experienced soreness from the impact, Wilmot said.

Cheney name-drops M-Rahm in memoir

Dick Cheney
GETTY IMAGES FILE

Chicago Tribune

Just before Rahm Emanuel became President Obama's chief of staff, he got some unsolicited advice from the men who held the job before him.

The gathering was hosted by Josh Bolten, who was President George W. Bush's last chief of staff. Also gathered around a table in the White House office they once worked in were Howard Baker, John Sununu and Leon Panetta, former Vice President Dick Cheney writes in his new book.

Cheney says he dropped one of his "better lines" on Emanuel.

"Josh went around and asked each of us to give Rahm our most important piece of advice," Cheney wrote in "In My Time: A Personal and Political Memoir." "By this time, of course, there'd been years of stories about how I was the evil genius controlling the Bush administration from behind a curtain, so when it came my turn I advised Rahm, 'Whatever you do, make sure you've got the vice president under control.' It was one of my better lines."

Emanuel is mentioned twice in Cheney's book, both in the final chapter, titled "Endings."

During a long setup about efforts to pass on Afghanistan intelligence to the incoming Obama camp, Cheney writes that the Bush administration decided to share its findings quietly "so they could use them without politics getting in the way."

"In light of that, I was somewhat surprised the following year to hear Obama chief of staff Rahm Emanuel assert that we had left them with no plan," Cheney wrote.

Emanuel left the chief of staff job in October to run for mayor of Chicago. His mayoral administration did not respond to Cheney's account Tuesday.

She's Chicago's teen cover queen

Chicago teen Zoe Damacela will appear on the cover of the October issue of Seventeen magazine, the mag announced Tuesday. Damacela, 19, beat out 35,000 other entrants to win the Pretty Amazing cover model contest, which comes with a $10,000 scholarship from Neutrogena.

Midway customs official sentenced

A former supervisor with the Customs and Border Protection office at Midway has been sentenced to 46 months in prison for taking nearly $30,000 in bribes in exchange for doctoring immigration documents to allow people to remain in the country illegally, officials said.

Man pleads not guilty in kissing murder case

Congrats to new PM in Japan

1 President Obama on Tuesday congratulated Yoshihiko Noda on his election as Japan's new prime minister and reaffirmed the close ties between their two countries.

Deadliest month of war

2 August has been the deadliest month of the Afghan war for American troops. A CNN count shows 66 U.S. deaths so far this month. Thirty Americans died in early August as a result of their transport helicopter being shot down.

50K dead in Libyan conflict

3 Libya's rebels estimate at least 50,000 people—civilians and combatants—have died in that country's civil war. A new CNN-Opinion Research Corp. poll finds that support for U.S. action in Libya has jumped 20 points as a result of the rebel victories.

Casino suspects talk attack

4 Suspects arrested in last week's casino fire in Monterrey, Mexico, that killed 52 people say civilians were not their target but that the fire got out of control. They say they attacked the casino because the owners did not meet their extortion demands.

$500 Facebook bounty

5 Facebook said this week that it has paid out more than $40,000 under its new "bug bounty" security initiative. Launched three weeks ago, Facebook's program pays a finder's fee of at least $500 to hackers who find glitches in the company's programs.

No money for memoirs

6 Former Detroit Mayor Kwame Kilpatrick will be barred from profiting from the sale of his memoirs, a court ruled Tuesday, until he pays off nearly $900,000 in restitution he still owes under his 2008 conviction on obstruction of justice and perjury charges.

Rescue efforts ongoing as coastal waters rise

7 Search-and-rescue teams went door to door by boat Tuesday in flooded communities in the Northeast, transporting families from their homes to higher ground.

"The water's moving so fast," said Scott Evans of the New Jersey Office of Emergency Management. "It's not even safe to go close to the river at this point."

Evans spoke with CNN in Paterson, N.J., just three blocks from the Passaic River, which was expected to crest by mid-afternoon.

Water in the street was as high as 15 to 18 feet, he said. Some one-story buildings were fully submerged.

Tuesday morning alone, 34 people, in-

DEATH TOLL RISES

The death toll stemming from Irene rose Tuesday. At least 41 deaths were linked to the storm, from Florida to North Carolina to New England.

cluding 14 children, were rescued in Paterson along with three dogs, Evans said.

While people had been warned that river levels were rising and flooding was likely, some stayed in their homes overnight because they didn't realize the water would come gushing so quickly, Evans said.

"Unfortunately, they are used to flooding, but not of this magnitude," he said of local residents. "And a lot of areas are getting flooded this time that have not been flooded before."

Some coastal communities along Irene's path have been cut off, turned temporarily into islands.

In Grafton, Vt., 800 residents were stranded. "It's one massive mess," said Tara Taylor, who came out of Grafton to nearby Rockingham, along with her family. "There's no words to describe this."

While part of Grafton has maintained electricity, much of the town is running on generators, she said. But as far as she knew, people were well, and no one had been hurt. "We've been very lucky with this," Taylor said.

Man survives garden shear accident

8 TUCSON, Ariz. An 86-year-old Arizona man who was impaled through the skull with pruning shears in a freak gardening accident was expected to make a full recovery, his doctors said.

Leroy Luetscher dropped a pair of pruning shears while working in his yard in Green Valley, south of Tucson, on July 30, the University Medical Center in Tucson said in a news release.

The shears landed in the ground point downward. When Luetscher bent down to pick them up, he fell face-down on the handle, which punched through his eye socket and went down into his neck.

Luetscher was rushed by ambulance to University Medical Center in Tucson, where a team of surgeons was able to remove the shears, rebuild the eye socket with metal mesh and save his eye.

Not down with Brown

Bears express little interest in Saints castoff

Chicago Tribune

Even with backups slated to play most of the game Thursday night in the exhibition finale against Cleveland, the Bears might not find an answer for their question at defensive end.

It's a final opportunity for a roster evaluation but if the Bears haven't seen it at this point, will they Thursday in the search to determine who will rotate with starters Julius Peppers and Israel Idonije?

Corey Wootton is targeting the Sept. 11 opener for a return but might be sidelined a little longer coming off arthroscopic surgery Aug. 16 to clear up minor cartilage damage in his right knee. Undrafted free agent Mario Addison flashed some skills in training camp but has faded some, and general manager Jerry Angelo has called the spot a "concern." Nick Reed has played some and shown little.

Then there is the possibility the Bears could shake things up and use some tackles on the outside, an option that comes with no guarantees of production.

One familiar name became available Tuesday when the New Orleans Saints released veteran Alex Brown after one season.

"We'll talk to them and see what they say," the former Bear told the Tribune. "I want to go somewhere that's going to win. That's what I am looking for."

But he's looking for a chance to play and from the sounds of things, coach Lovie Smith is pleased with where things are right now.

"If we didn't feel comfortable, we'd be bringing in other guys," Smith said. "I'm excited about the defensive ends we have."

Alex Brown
TRIBUNE FILE

TAYLOR TAKES THE BLAME

Even if Chester Taylor didn't agree with how his Monday morning meeting with coach Lovie Smith has been interpreted, the veteran running back made the smart play Tuesday. After practicing with the team he's not expected to be with much longer, Taylor said it was a "miscommunication" on his part. Obviously, Taylor wants to look like a good soldier when he leaves so other teams don't view him in a negative light. "I just took the words the wrong way, basically," he said.

PITCH FEST

A LOOK AT BASEBALL FROM BOTH SIDES OF TOWN

BRIGHTER FUTURE: SOX OR CUBS?

north side

JULIE DICARO
twitter.com/aeryssports

In looking to the future on both sides of town, so much hinges on the owners. On the South Side, there's Jerry Reinsdorf, who brought six NBA titles and a World Series to Chicago. Reinsdorf has proved he has the know-how and desire to win. On the North Side, there's Tom Ricketts, who seems more interested in talking about the Wrigley experience than putting a winning team on the field.

The general manager the Ricketts family chooses to replace Jim Hendry will speak volumes about its ownership. Will the Rickettses hire the young, independent, egghead GM fans are clamoring for? Or will they hire a yes-man who allows meddling in all his decisions?

Until fans know that answer, it's a good bet the next World Series game played in Chicago will be on the South Side.

» Read Julie DiCaro's Cubs blog at aeryssports.com/a-league-of-her-own.

south side

SOXMAN
twitter.com/thesoxman72

The fat lady isn't singing "na na hey hey goodbye" to the Sox postseason hopes just yet. For another month anyway, the future looks much brighter on the South Side. Beyond that? As Yoda said in "Star Wars": "Impossible to see the future is. The dark side clouds everything."

The Cubs and the Sox have similar "dark sides": both have bad contracts, below-average farm systems and management questions from the GM down. For every questionable Mike Quade benching, there's Ozzie Guillen starting Alex Rios (and his .212 average) in the clean-up spot. Will either be in Chicago in 2012? As much as Kenny Williams could be "all out" for his poor acquisitions, Cubs fans cannot be asked to buy into a rebuilding plan until they know their next GM.

If Pitch Fest has taught us anything, it is to expect the unexpected. Think positive, Cubs and Sox fans.

1 How awkward is it between the Bears and Chester Taylor now?

A little, but I'm sure the Bears will be running back for more.

Remember on "Seinfeld" when George didn't know if he was hired so he just showed up? Yeah.

For now Chester Taylor remains a cut above the rest.

Only Kristin Cavallari showing up to Soldier Field in a Caleb Hanie jersey could be more awkward.

They're already planning two Christmases.

2 Time for some Chuck Norris-style Dayan Viedo "facts." Go.

He's a good hitter for the Sox—a Dayan breed.

I refuse to participate in anything that causes me to praise the White Sox. That's in my contract.

The Twins are considering changing their name to the Triplets to stop Dayan Viedo.

The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse actually live in Viedo's jockstrap.

Dayan Viedo doesn't go "All in." He's already been there and back.

3 What could go wrong with Ron Artest on "Dancing With the Stars"?

There could be shooting stars.

You mean Metta World Peace? Why do you ask?

If the audience heckles him, he could be "Dancing With the Fists."

Never heard of him. But who knows what that crazy bastard Metta World Peace will do.

What could go right with Ron Artest on "Dancing With the Stars"?

4 What are the symptoms of "Madden NFL 12" addiction?

Earning the title of "rashing leader."

Playing the demo over and over in the hopes that it will magically turn into the real game.

I have not seen my brother since "Madden 10." How's that for addiction?

Sweaty palms, blisters and countless hours alone in my room. IT'S NOT WHAT YOU THINK, MOM!

You rate your kids by accuracy, agility and block-shedding.

5 College football starts this week. How are you counting down?

With my national championship titles, soon to be Muschampionship titles.

By noting that Indiana basketball starts in 63 days!

The Sox still haven't won their division. One magic number at a time, people!

By worshipping at the altar of Erin Andrews from now until then.

By listing my top 10 most memorable college scandals—of the past week.

Sox rub me the wrong way

I hate these White Sox. Seriously. We're all excited because they've won a few games and put themselves in position to make a run at the AL Central title. Great. A few weeks ago they were even closer to first place. And now

TODAY'S DOGFIGHT Question?

Would you like to see the Bears bring back Alex Brown? Text "alex1" for yes or "alex2" for no to 87708. You'll get the results instantly. Text HELP for help. Text STOP to cancel. Msg&data rates may apply we are pumped Dayan Viedo is here. Good for him. He should have been here two months ago. If the Sox knew what they were doing, they'd be fives games ahead of Detroit right now.

THAT'S LOGICAL

Eight Miami University football players who were determined to have received improper benefits must sit out games this season and make repayments. Because college players who are taking money from boosters have so much of it just sitting around.

THE TUCK RULE

Sammy Sosa was seen partying in New York City on Sunday, depositing dollar bills in the waistband of a belly dancer's skirt. My only question is: What color was he this week?

TREATED

Chester Taylor took the blame for a mix-up about his status with the team that had his agent tweeting that the Bears had released him. Class move. First Roy Williams, now Taylor.

There sure are a lot of Bears mishaps needing someone to take the blame this season. That's not very reassuring.

IN THE DOGHOUSE

Lovie Smith, in response to Alex Brown-to-the-Bears rumors: "We like our guys we have right now." These "guys" who play Brown's position—which would be a backup role—include injured Corey Wootton and a few other dudes. What's not to like?

FIRE 2, RICHMOND 1

Sebastian Grazzini and Dominic Oduro scored as the Fire beat Richmond 2-1 in a U.S. Open Cup semifinal Tuesday. The Fire will meet FC Dallas or Seattle in early October for the tournament title.

» Sox rookie slugger Dayan Viedo was named to the International League postseason all-star team. Viedo, 22, batted .297 with 28 doubles, 20 home runs and 78 RBIs in 118 games for Triple-A Charlotte.

SEPTEMBER survival guide

20+ things to do this month

By Jessica Galliard

Think the sun setting on an unforgettable summer means the party's over? Think again. Unpack your cardigans and sexy scarves as you prepare for the arrival of cooler weather and fall into these two dozenish, awesomely autumn events and parties not to miss this month.

JESSICA GALLIART IS THE METROMIX EVENTS PRODUCER.
JGALLIART@TRIBUNE.COM | @METROMIXCHI

SEPT. 2

Movies in the Parks

Consider this the month of last chances—if you have yet to check out a free outdoor screening in one of the Chicago Park District's fine spaces for this summer series, you still have a few options. See "The Dilemma" in Seward Park (375 W. Elm St.) on Sept. 2.

SEPT. 3

Stay Smooth XV: 'Hey Fifteen'

Columbia Yacht Club,
111 Lake Shore Drive

Try not to get "seasick" at this third annual boat party hosted by Lincoln Hall and Schubas aboard a yacht that doesn't actually set sail. DJ Bald E spins the best of yacht rock as boatgoers battle it out at costume contests. Head to Lincoln Hall (2424 N. Lincoln Ave.) afterward for Auto Tune karaoke and more.

SEPT. 3-5

Labor Day parties

Pump up your Sunday morning hangover—just because you can—with the Summer Couture Party at Navy Pier, extended hours at swanky spots such as Paris Club and Hub 51 or at your neighborhood watering hole, sure to have drinks on special throughout the weekend.

Want more? Check out our fest guide (chicago.metromix.com/festguide) and our events listings (chicago.metromix.com/september) online.

SEPT. 6

The @Mayoremanuel Book Event

Hideout, 1354 W. Wabansia Ave.

The foul-mouthed Twitter caricature of Chicago's Mayor Emanuel would never let "sold out" stop him from crashing an event. Celebrate the book release of "The F***ing Epic Twitter Quest of @Mayoremanuel" chronicling author Dan Sinker's creation of the explosive fake Twitter account for Emanuel with readings, live music and more. (RedEye does not endorse crashing this event—just beg someone to sell you their ticket or buy the book later, OK?)

SEPT. 10-11

Renegade Craft Fair

Division Street between Paulina Street and Damen Avenue

Bring cash and try to control your inner shopping monster at the annual craft extravaganza with more than 300 local and national artists presenting their wares.

SEPT. 10-11

A.V. Fest

Hideout, 1354 W. Wabansia Ave.

The Onion's real-words companion, The A.V. Club, hosts its first music fest, because, well, everyone else is doing it. Local bands Maps & Atlases and Disappears headline with other national groups, and Chicago food trucks line up to feed the indie masses.

SEPT. 18

Chicago Bacon Takedown

Lincoln Hall, 2424 N. Lincoln Ave.

Indulge in Chicago's love affair with bacon as locals show off their creations made from Hormel Black Label bacon and compete for the champ title. Stuff yourself with all-you-can-eat samples for $15, then vote to award the winner with $1,500 in prizes.

SEPT. 23

Chicago Gourmet Hamburger Hop

Millennium Park Rooftop Terrace,

FOOD FIGHT

SETTLING DELICIOUS, AGE-OLD DISAGREEMENTS ONE ARGUMENT AT A TIME

Some like their pizza cut in squares, while others swear by slices. For as long as we've been stuffing our faces with delicious food, there have been conflicts about the way we eat it. Addressing such fervent foodie issues, we bring you Food Fight.

This week: Should your server say something if he or she thinks you tipped improperly?

YES

After a few rounds of saketinis during a night out for sushi, my girlfriends and I miscounted our $20 bills and accidentally shorted our server. He said something, and we felt stupid. But if he hadn't, we would have felt even worse when we realized our mistake. If the bill seems monstrously off because of a few too many glasses of wine or just bad math, I hope my server will speak up so that our table doesn't unintentionally earn itself a place on the restaurant's blacklist. —LISA ARNETT

VS

NO

Most of the general population has been dining without parental supervision since high school, so at this point, we (should) know the rules of tipping. "Tips are negotiable" is definitely not one of them. The most valuable things I learned from waiting tables are patience, responsibility and how to walk away from a bad situation. If you can't interpret a less-than-standard tip as a signal that you could have done better, maybe it's time to find a new gig. —JESSICA GALLIART

September sounds CONCERTS NOT TO MISS

GUIDE

By Andy Downing

As September rolls in, Chicago's endless festival season continues with the return of one old standby (Hideout Block Party) and the debut of yet another new kid on the block (Brilliant Corners of Popular Amusements). Also on the docket? An appearance from an American Idol turned country superstar (Carrie Underwood), the return of a dance-rock buzz-band (Cut Copy) and a performance from a crew of bearded folkies with a sound as warm and inviting as a favorite wool sweater (Fleet Foxes). Find full event info at metromix.com.

North Coast Music Fest

Sept. 2-4 at Union Park

Though it takes place in the same location as the Pitchfork Music Fest, this three-day affair differentiates itself by featuring a higher concentration of electronic acts (Major Lazer, David Guetta, Bassnectar) and hip-hoppers (Wiz Khalifa, Common).

Diplo

Sept. 3 at Congress Theater

The Philly DJ/producer brings his anything-goes musical sensibility to his wide-ranging sets, which draw upon everything from classic '60s soul to Brazilian dance hall.

Carrie Underwood

Sept. 4 at Ravinia Festival

Arguably the most successful "American Idol" alum, the country belter is at her best when she cuts loose on fiery revenge tales like "Before He Cheats."

Autumn Defense

Sept. 7 at Lincoln Hall

Wilco members Pat Sansone and John Stirratt flash their pop-classicist chops in this well-mannered side project.

Brahms

Sept. 8 at Schubas

These NYC newcomers, who somehow look like stark black-and-white photographs even when shot in color, have a bone-chilling sound reminiscent of early Depeche Mode.

Black Moth Super Rainbow

Sept. 8 at Metro

It's possible to get a contact high just listening to the psychedelic guitar stew turned out by this Pittsburgh crew.

Male Bonding

Sept. 8 at Subterranean

On its third album, "Endless Now," the youthful London quartet flaunts a guitar-driven sound that's at once sloppy and melodic.

Alison Krauss & Union Station

Sept. 9 at Chicago Theatre

Fresh off a collaboration with Robert Plant, Krauss makes a welcome return to both her longtime backing band, Union Station, and her bluegrass roots.

Braids

Sept. 13 at Empty Bottle

Songs by this Montreal trio have a dreamy, ethereal feel—as though they somehow were captured amid the fog of the afterlife.

Brilliant Corners of Popular Amusements

Sept. 16-18 at Eckhart Park

This whimsically named affair aims to set itself apart from the pack by pairing musical performances with an array of trapeze artists, acrobatic troupes and contortionists.

Manu Chao
GETTY IMAGES

Manu Chao Sept. 13 at Congress Theater

When Manu Chao headlined Lollapalooza in 2006, Grant Park took on the look and feel of an international soccer match, complete with flag waving and deafening cheers. Expect a similar energy when the international star takes over the Congress for a globe-hopping set.

Beirut Sept. 26 at Congress Theater

A globe-trotting crew that swings effortlessly between gypsy folk, Mexican funeral dirges and elegant Euro pop.

Active Child Sept. 16 at Schubas

With his airy falsetto and love of the harp, Pat Grossi, who records and performs as Active Child, easily could come across like a Renaissance faire holdover. Instead, songs such as "Playing House" flirt with modern R&B. Props to the first rapper who invites Grossi to sing on a hook.

Okkervil River

Sept. 22 at the Vic

Led by professorial frontman Will Sheff, this Austin, Texas, indie rock crew turns out ramshackle ballads and more muscular, orchestrated numbers with equal aplomb.

Swans

Sept. 22 at Bottom Lounge

On its latest album, "My Father Will Guide Me Up a Rope to the Sky," this New York-based noise-rock crew muscles through dense, swirling epics that sound something like planets being born.

Black Star

Sept. 23 at House of Blues

Though NYC rappers Mos Def and Talib Kweli have only recorded a single Black Star album together, the 1998 effort remains one of the most influential hip-hop records released in the past 15 years.

James Blake

Sept. 29 at Metro

The buzzed-about dubstep emoter recently set Twitter ablaze when he announced a mysterious collaboration with indie-rock icon Bon Iver, intriguingly dubbed Fall Creek Boys Choir.

Girls

Sept. 29 at Lincoln Hall

A word of warning: Don't attempt to Google "Vomit," the first single off this shaggy California crew's excellent sophomore album, the hazy, lovelorn "Father, Son, Holy Ghost."

Avett Brothers

Sept. 30 at Aragon Ballroom

Originally miscast as folk revivalists, these North Carolina roots-rockers since have stumbled on a more expansive and rewarding sound.

Fleet Foxes

Sept. 30 and Oct. 1 at Chicago Theatre

The melodic folksters in Fleet Foxes might be at the top of their game musically, but frontman Robin Pecknold sounds like he's undergoing a quarter-life crisis on the band's latest, questioning his place in both modern society ("Helplessness Blues") and the universe as a whole (the solitary "Blue Spotted Tail").

ANDY DOWNING IS A METROMIX
SPECIAL CONTRIBUTOR. METROMIX@
TRIBUNE.COM | @METROMIXCHI

Panda Bear

Sept. 29 at the Vic

At his best, the Animal Collective noisemaker conjures an array of warped, Beach Boys-esque melodies. At his worst, it's like listening in as a blue whale gives pained birth.

The Raincoats

Sept. 19 at Double Door

Even three decades on these British post-punk legends, who have played sparingly in recent years, haven't melted in the slightest.

Cut Copy

Sept. 20 at Riviera Theatre

Expect the Riviera balcony to sway like the city's withstanding a 4.7 earthquake when the Australian dance-rock crew, which played an explosive set at this year's Pitchfork Music Festival, makes a welcome return to Chicago.

The Vaccines

Sept. 21 at Lincoln Hall

This youthful British group tears through an array of effortlessly catchy rockers that owe a heavy debt to the likes of The Strokes.

Labor Intensive

5 (more) local actors dish on their worst jobs ever

By Julia Borcherts

Big breaks don't come easy. Even though many actors approach their craft as a labor of love, working toward that big break—or any break at all—often requires that they work some less-than-stellar gigs to pay the bills. So in the spirit of Labor Day, we again asked five hot local actors to tell us about the worst jobs they ever had.

JULIA BORCHERTS IS A METROMIX SPECIAL CONTRIBUTOR. METROMIX@TRIBUNE.COM

Brian Babylon

Comedian and host of vocalo.org's "Morning Amp" program

The job(s): Classic film archivist, Chuck E. Cheese character

"I worked 8-10 hour days in the basement of TBS in Atlanta in the MGM movie vault watching and archiving black and white movies. After three months, I start going crazy—talking old timey and thinking that summer days should be in black and white.

"Oh, also, try being hung over in a Chuck E. Cheese rat suit, doing a ShowBiz Pizza birthday party on a Bears Sunday!"

See him: Tonight (and biweekly on Wednesdays) at the Bronzeville Coffee House Comedy Show at the Bronzeville Coffee House, 528 E. 43rd St., and Sept. 27 as host of The Moth StorySLAM at Martyrs', 3855 N. Lincoln Ave.

Caroline Neff

Ensemble member, Steep Theatre Company

The job: Jell-O wrestling co-host

"Just before I started college, I was hired to work at a bar in South Texas—improv on the weekends, karaoke during the week unless it was Wednesday, in which case I co-hosted Jell-O wrestling. The owner of the bar didn't want to seem like he was a leech, so he decided it should be coed. There also was not a ton of money being poured into this event, so it took place in one of those round plastic kiddie pools filled with about 2 inches of Jell-O. More often than not, it ended up being two guys getting in a fight in the sad puddle of Jell-O while the bar cheered them on. If I was really lucky, I got to hose them off outside afterwards. I think we got $15 a show."

See her: Through Sept. 17 in "Pornography" at Steep Theatre, 1115 W. Berwyn Ave.

Sarah Hecht

Ensemble member (with Tosha Fowler and Megan Kohl) in The Vox Theatre

The job:

Convention cater-waiter

"Megan and I forged a lasting bond when we worked together in a tiny kitchen—about 5 by 8 feet—which we fondly named 'The German Sausage Closet.' We were personal cater-waiters for a German company at a large plastics convention where we spent long days in our tiny closet doling out sausages, Bavarian pretzels and beer to German plastics merchants. As a life-long vegetarian, I had never been exposed to such sausage variety—it was very educational. Since the team had to fly back to Germany afterward, they gave us all the leftovers. So Tosha threw a barbecue, and the sausage was the featured item."

See her: Saturday through Monday in The Vox Theatre's "Wild Women XXX" (with Fowler and Kohl) at the Chicago Fringe Festival Doppler Stage, 1915 S. Halsted St.: chicagofringe.org

Kathrynne Wolff

Actor, Babes With Blades

The job: Construction site data entry worker

"I was putting myself through my second year of college, with classes all day and rehearsals most evenings. Not a lot of free hours to work. I found myself, one Chicago winter, working for a construction company of very expensive homes—heated sidewalks, central vacuuming and other amenities I had not known existed. My job was to get up at some ungodly hour each morning to trudge the two miles to the construction site and sit in a barely heated trailer in front of the burgeoning palace and enter data and run reports before I trudged back to begin my classes for the day. As I was entering info about how many spa jets and heated toilet seats we'd installed, I was working in gloves, scarf, hat and my winter coat and had only an outhouse for breaks."

See her: Through Sept. 24 as the sword-wielding Shirley Spagel in Babes With Blades' "The Double" at Lincoln Square Theatre, 4754 N. Leavitt St.

Scott Bradley

Actor ("The Homosexuals") and writer-director-producer with Scooty & JoJo Productions

The job: Headhunter for investment banking, specializing in mergers and acquisitions

"I spent six months developing profiles on top banking executives and conducting covert interviews with them and their peers to help major financial institutions steal personnel from their competitors. Not only did I help staff the companies that led us into the financial meltdown, the company that employed me also helped their clients skirt E.O.E. rules by only giving them white, straight family men to choose from. I was a young starving actor in New York at the time but promptly left when I realized the true implications of my work. And now I wear a dress on stage, which hurts no one."

See him: Sept. 25 as host of Fifth Star Expo at Stage 773, 1225 W. Belmont Ave., and Oct. 28 in "Alien Queen: The Concert" at Metro, 3730 N. Clark St.

Ale yeah!

Chicago Tribune

There's no question that an imperial, or double, India pale ale is a big beer. The prerequisite for brewing the style is massive doses of malt and hops, which typically result in a beer with an alcohol content of at least 7.5 percent by volume.

Just as a Russian imperial stout is a much bigger, more aggressive cousin to a stout, double IPAs are a spinoff of an India pale ale, a beer brewed with loads of hops that serve as a natural preservative on the long trek from Britain to India. As a result, the bolder cousin of a style known for its bitter, spicy notes that emanate from hops is going to be a hoppy beer. In fact, the guidelines for double IPAs published by the Brewers Association, a trade group representing American craft brewers, state that the style is intended to exhibit the fresh and bright character of hops.

But that doesn't mean that double IPAs have to be one-dimensional, palate-singeing hop bombs. In fact, the style's big hop flavors balance well with big, malty notes, says Taylor Rees, head brewer at Great Divide Brewing Co., which brews Hercules double IPA.

Rees' ideas about the style are clear when sipping Hercules, as the hops' piney, citrus notes are prominent, but they're balanced by caramel-like malty flavors.

"We've always been about balance," he says. "When we started, we had four full-time and four part-time staff and the majority of us liked well-balanced beers. So it was never a question whether we would make a hop bomb or if we would craft a hoppy beer with a malty backbone."

Great Divide isn't alone. Southern Tier ages its Unearthly double IPA in oak to give the beer an added dimension, while Boulevard adds ingredients such as brown sugar to its malt mash to give its Double-Wide IPA distinct toffee and caramel notes.

Boulevard Double-Wide IPA

3 TO TRY

Boulevard Double-Wide IPA: A deep-amber beer with a complex melange of ripe pear, pine and tobacco notes balanced with breadlike malt notes.

Great Divide Hercules Double IPA: A copper-colored beer with pine and citrus aromas and pronounced malty notes that balance out the citrus, mango and pine flavors.

Southern Tier Oak Aged Unearthly: An amber-hued beer with a sweet, malty aroma and notes of vanilla, oak, citrus and pine.

THE RISE
OF RYAN

Drive Sept. 16

It's a crime thriller. It's an adrenaline-rush car flick. It's Ryan Gosling and Carey Mulligan further establishing themselves as major stars. He's a stuntman/part-time criminal and she's his neighbor, who must flee after he's part of a deadly job gone wrong. I've seen it, and I can say it's a movie some will hate and many will love.

FALL'S TOP 10 MOVIES

NOT ALL THE ACTION'S IN THE SUMMER—
ESPECIALLY WITH GOSLING AT THE WHEEL

fast
paced

MATT PAIS
mpais
@tribune.com

I know, I know. Fall doesn't start in September and end in October. Yet there are so many movies coming out before the end of the year that we'd be piling on if we tried to tell you about every upcoming release now. So we're considering "fall movie season" to be the two-month period between next week and November.

Shut up, calendar.

Anyway, you have a lot to be psyched for: "Contagion," a thriller partially shot in Chicago; "Wanderlust," the new comedy from the maker of "Wet Hot American Summer"; and "Drive" and "The Ides of March," two highly anticipated flicks starring "It Guy" Ryan Gosling.

Here are 10 movies you should get excited to see, and on Page 35 you'll find 10 movies that don't hold as much promise. MATT PAIS IS REDEYE'S MOVIE CRITIC.

In a time of economic calamity, there's one stock on the rise: Ryan Gosling. Seriously, invest! Invest! Everywhere you look, you see the handsome Mr. Gosling (not that we mind), from movies to music to the tabloids—even during movie previews where his "The Notebook" rain scene is in that "silence your cellphone" ad. Here's a look at Ryan's road to being named RedEye's "It Guy" of fall.

The Notebook 2004

Yes, this tearjerker came out in '04. Now you feel old.

Half Nelson 2006

Forget romcom Ryan. Dramatic, badass Ryan showed he has serious talent and was nominated for an Oscar.

Dead Man's Bones 2009

Gosling's band, Dead Man's Bones, releases self-titled album. Kudos to this display of acting and musical talent.

Blue Valentine 2010

The movie's kind of a downer, but he nabbed a Golden Globe nomination.

Contagion Sept. 9

Check out this formula for awesomeness: An all-star cast (Matt Damon, Kate Winslet, Jude Law, Gwyneth Paltrow, Laurence Fishburne, Marion Cotillard), director Steven Soderbergh ("The Informant!") and a significant portion of the film shot in the Chicago area. So what if the story's reminiscent of "Outbreak," minus the monkey?

Warrior Sept. 9

Why is this movie, which undeniably recalls "The Fighter," worth noting? Because it's a chance for Tom Hardy ("Inception," "Bronson") to become a household name before he breaks out even more as Bane in "The Dark Knight Rises." In "Warrior," he plays an ex-Marine looking to win an MMA tournament ... which eventually means taking down his older brother (Joel Edgerton). I've seen it, and it's great.

Moneyball Sept. 23

Could the fact-based tale be this year's "Social Network"? Maybe. "Social Network" scribe Aaron Sorkin co-wrote it, adapted from Michael Lewis' book, about Oakland A's general manager Billy Beane's (Brad Pitt) method of using computer-generated analysis to guide draft picks and build a team on a budget. Jonah Hill co-stars as Beane's assistant, and I can't help but wonder if Hill being Pitt's assistant is the punchline to a joke no one's written yet.

The Ides of March Oct. 7

Not a tough sell. George Clooney (who also directs), Ryan Gosling, Philip Seymour Hoffman, Paul Giamatti, Marisa Tomei and Evan Rachel Wood star in this political thriller that doesn't exactly make the campaign trail look nice and easy. Oscar potential here.

Wanderlust Oct. 7

Let's give writer-director David Wain a mulligan for the uneven "The Ten" while recognizing that "Role Models" is underrated and "Wet Hot American Summer" is legendary. Now: Wain's latest re-teams Jennifer Aniston and Paul Rudd ("The Object of My Affection") as a couple who escape their stressful New York lives by moving to a laid-back Atlanta community. Note: The movie co-stars Aniston's BF, Justin Theroux.

Martha Marcy May Marlene Oct. 21

More creepiness: Excellent newcomer Elizabeth Olsen (yep, the Olsen twins' younger sister) stars as a woman struggling to acclimate into society after escaping a cult. I've seen this, and I'm still haunted by it.

Red State Sept. 1 (VOD); Oct. 18 (DVD)

Of all the filmmakers who needed a stylistic changeup, Kevin Smith sits near the top of the list after the inept "Cop Out." So it's extra exciting that this horror flick, aside from looking eerie as hell, could signal the return of a once-promising writer while simultaneously demonstrating newfound skills as a director. Here's hoping.

In Time Oct. 28

In a world in which no one ages past 25, the poor die young and the rich live forever, Justin Timberlake, who either will prove his dramatic chops or show he's not the man for the job, stars as a poor man given the time (and life) of a rich man and wrongly accused of murder. Co-starring Amanda Seyfried and Olivia Wilde as Timberlake's character's mom. Hubba.

Like Crazy Oct. 28

"Like Crazy," starring Anton Yelchin and Felicity Jones as college students who must deal with elation together and anguish apart, won best picture and best actress prizes at Sundance this year. My gut says this could be pure beauty.

* Release dates subject to change

» MORE MOVIES ON PAGE 35

Crazy, Stupid, Love

July

Hey, he can do comedy, too! Gosling charms as a lothario with "photoshopped" abs.

Street rumble

August

A video is posted online showing real-life Gosling smoothly stepping in to break up a fight in the middle of a Manhattan street. Our hero.

Drive

September

Gosling teams up with fellow up-and-coming hotties Christina Hendricks and Carey Mulligan to play an edgy stuntman.

The Ides of March

October

Not that he ever takes bad roles, but playing a politico in George Clooney's much-buzzed-about campaign flick could be Gosling's best decision yet.

10 MORE FALL FLICKS

You've seen the trailers. You're not sure what to make of the movies, but you're not ready to write them off just yet. Here are the fall movies that A) have piqued my curiosity, or B) have made me say, "No, no, no, no."

* Release dates subject to change

MAKE OTHER PLANS

Shark Night 3-D Friday

Look, I have no problem with a movie that's not trying to be anything other than escapist fun. That said, what will "Shark Night 3-D" possibly do that wasn't just done with "Piranha 3D," especially considering "Shark" is PG-13? Director David R. Ellis ("Snakes on a Plane") has yet to convince me that he knows how to turn inherent stupidity into a good time.

Abduction Sept. 23

I have a certain amount of faith in co-stars such as Maria Bello, Sigourney Weaver and Alfred Molina. But this catchphrase-heavy action flick, directed by John Singleton and starring Taylor Lautner as a kid on the run from the Feds, has one major problem: It stars Lautner, who looks unnatural even when he's flexing.

The Thing Oct. 14

Haven't had enough '80s remakes lately ("Footloose," "Fright Night," "Conan the Barbarian")? Great, because here's another take on John Carpenter's 1982 flick in which supposedly smart people make stupid decisions involving a terrible beast.

GET CURIOUS

A Good Old Fashioned Orgy Friday

The end of summer can mean only one thing: Orgy. OK, that's not the only thing the end of summer means, but it's what a group of friends (including Jason Sudeikis, Leslie Bibb, Lindsay Sloane and Lake Bell) hope to make happen this year.

Straw Dogs Sept. 16

The main discussion point for many will be the recent real-life split of co-stars Kate Bosworth and Alexander Skarsgard. More interesting, though, is finding out if this James Marsden-fronted remake of the 1971 Sam Peckinpah psychological thriller will maintain its level of controversy at a time when films featuring excessive violence are nothing out of the ordinary.

50/50 Sept. 30

A comedy about having cancer? It could work, with Joseph Gordon-Levitt starring as the 27-year-old with the diagnosis and Seth Rogen, Anjelica Huston and Anna Kendrick as his support system.

Real Steel Oct. 7

Dude, up top! Sorry, that just seems like the only appropriate reaction to the trailer for this metallic sports movie, in which Hugh Jackman (ever the convincing tough guy) appears to star as a major player in the high-rolling world of robot fighting, which is an element of the future I think we all saw coming.

Paranormal Activity 3 Oct. 21

If you don't have an idea for a sequel, how about a prequel? Because successful horror franchises go on as long as they possibly can, "PA3" arrives to probably do virtually the same thing as the first two movies, apparently set 18 years earlier. MATT PAIS, REDEYE

popmovies

Footloose Oct. 14

Does this update of the 1984 flick look like a great film? Of course not. And it's not as if anyone can take the so 1980s concept of a town that has banned dancing seriously. Regardless, the film's trailer evokes enough fun and sexiness from stars Kenny Wormald and Julianne Hough that I'd like to think this will just be a brainless good time. Maybe.

The Rum Diary Oct. 28

Johnny Depp ("Fear and Loathing in Las Vegas") stars in another flick based on a Hunter S. Thompson novel. In this loopy travel flick, he plays a journalist who escapes the stress of New York to a more laid-back lifestyle in Puerto Rico, where he connects with an engaged American hottie (Amber Heard). The trailer suggests something that could be wild, wacky, sexy, fun and a little familiar for everyone involved.

Well, it's better than 'Red'

'The Debt' (R)

Sure, in 1997 Rachel (Helen Mirren) celebrates the release of her daughter's book about when Rachel and other Israeli agents took down a Nazi war criminal. However, let's go to some 30-year-old flashbacks in Berlin (when Rachel is played by the excellent Jessica Chastain and her colleagues are played by Sam Worthington and Martin Csokas) to see if everything in the book checks out. History has a way of editing out certain facts, or so we've heard.

The buzz: Good to see 66-year-old Mirren keeping busy; this is her second release in five days (after "Brighton Rock"). Director John Madden ("Shakespeare in Love") may not be an obvious choice for a political thriller (remade from a 2007 Israeli film), but a greater concern is that starring in the biggest movie ever wasn't enough to make a household name of Worthington ("Avatar," "Terminator Salvation"),

Helen Mirren stars as retired secret agent
Rachel Singer in 'The Debt.'
FOCUS FEATURES

probably because he's yet to deliver a true movie star performance.

The verdict: Well-crafted and tense but just not believable. That's on the shoulders of a forced love triangle and a far-fetched ending that confuses the need to tell the truth for others' sake with the act of covering your own butt and clearing your conscience. Worthington remains a blank slate, though even he can't diffuse an exhilarating sequence in which the agents must operate for just 14 seconds at a time due to enemy surveillance. That's your cue to giggle.

Did you know? To get close to a target, Rachel must pretend to be a patient while the man works as, of all things, a gynecologist. That's what you call commitment to an investigation.

MATT PAIS IS REDEYE'S MOVIE CRITIC.

PAIN.PAIN.PAIN.PAIN OPIOID.OPIOID.OPIOID CONSTIPATION

DO YOU TAKE A PRESCRIPTION OPIOID PAIN MEDICATION AND SUFFER FROM CONSTIPATION?

You could be eligible to participate in a clinical research study looking at whether an investigational medication is safe and effective in treating constipation commonly occurring in people taking opioid pain medications, like morphine.

You may be able to help with this research if you are:

- ages 18 to 84
- taking at least one opioid pain medication daily
- experiencing constipation symptoms such as:
  - fewer than three bowel movements per week
  - hard/lumpy stools
  - straining
  - sensation of incomplete bowel movements.

Qualified participants will receive study-related investigational medication and study-related health assessments at no cost to you. You may receive compensation for your time and travel if you are eligible to participate in this clinical study.

WHAT'S THE DEAL WITH THIS CONTROVERSIAL RAPPER?

By Ariel Alexovich | REDEYE

For the uninitiated, the viewer-chosen winner of this weekend's MTV's Video Music Award for best new artist was a "Who?" moment. As in, "Who's that rapper wearing the tie-dyed, cat-printed T-shirt, the one falling off the stage and cursing like crazy?" Meet Tyler, the Creator, who still was a Twitter trending topic Tuesday and is the latest flashpoint in the culture wars. Tyler and his fellow members in the hip-hop collective Odd Future Wolf Gang Kill Them All have dominated music headlines lately, and not always in a good way. Here's what you need to know about the controversial, love-him-or-hate-him Tyler. ARIEL@TRIBUNE.COM | @MISSARIEL

1 Tyler, in a nutshell

Tyler, the Creator, aka Wolf Haley, Ace or Tyler Okonma (his real name) is a 20-year-old L.A. rapper and the leader of Odd Future. The music of both the group and Tyler's solo work has been derided for violent and derogatory lyrics, especially toward women and the LGBT community, while being held up as a game-changer by the likes of Billboard, which put Odd Future on its cover, and Pitchfork, which invited the group to perform at this year's festival.

2 GLAAD really, really dislikes him

He dropped the F-bomb—as in the derogatory term for gay people—213 times in his sophomore album, "Goblin," according to the gay rights organization.

3 He's got more than a few celebrity haters, too

Bruno Mars, B.o.B, Sara Quin of Tegan and Sara, and Chris Brown all have called out Tyler for his disturbing lyrics. For instance, in "Yonkers," for which Tyler won the VMA, he threatens to "stab Bruno Mars" in the esophagus.

4 However, he loves other artists such as Drake, Selena Gomez and especially Justin Bieber

He told billboard.com that collaborating with Biebs is "on my bucket list." "I'm not too big on collaborations, [but] it'd be pretty cool if Justin Bieber asked," he said.

5 Not all his lyrics are anti-gay or misogynistic

Some of them reflect just the bizarre inner musings of an adolescent boy. "I'm awesome, and I [bleep] dolphins," Tyler raps on "Tron Cat."

6 He is exceptionally so social media-savvy

Yeah, he's active on Twitter (480K+ followers) and pitches in with Odd Future's two artsy Tumblr accounts. But his most revealing self comes out on his Formspring page, where he answers fans' questions, such as: "are you lonely?" Answer: "sometimes. but im happy so i dont think about it." Or, "What'd you do after you won the VMA?" Answer: "went to fat-burger with my friends."

7 He insists he's not a bad guy

"I don't hate gay people. I don't want anyone to think I'm homophobic."

That's what he told British music mag NME. And about all his critics? He told the New York Times: "They don't know me; they don't get it. Weren't they 18 years old at some point, just having fun?"

20 MILLIONS AMERICANS SUFFER FROM SLEEP APNEA A CUSTOM ORAL APPLIANCE MAY BE YOUR ANSWER TO SLEEPING EASY!

CHICAGO—After discovering that his son Scott was diagnosed with obstructive sleep Apnea (OSA), Dr. Richard A. Craig, DDS and Diplomate of the American Board of Dental Sleep Medicine decided to treat his son's sleep disorder with a dental device known as an Oral Appliance.

Now that Scott's OSA was being treated on a daily basis, Dr. Craig noticed a significant change in his son. Scott's life had turned around! He had more energy, was more focused and productive, he even began to dream when he slept.

After realizing the remarkable effect the Oral Appliance had treating his son, Dr. Craig decided to establish Midwest Dental Sleep Center, Chicagoland's Only dental clinics focused solely on treating patients that suffer from OSA and snoring.

If you suffer from OSA or snoring and want a treatment option that works for you, contact Midwest Dental Sleep Center and begin to Sleep Easy.

Dr. Katherine Phillips, Dr. Richard Craig, Dr. Charles Lockhart, Dr. James Hogg

At MIDWEST DENTAL SLEEP CENTER, our sole mission is to treat patients suffering from Obstructive Sleep Apnea and Snoring. Each clinic directed by a Diplomate of the American Board of Dental Sleep Medicine, the premiere credentialing organization in the country.

Our Oral Appliance Therapy treatment program is designed to provide our patients with an easy to use everyday treatment option.

SLEEP APNEA

Most people with Sleep Apnea snore. If you snore or have any of the symptoms below, you might have Sleep Apnea:

- Daytime Fatigue
- Weight Gain
- Napping or Dozing Off
- Drowsy Driving
- Difficulty Concentrating & Focusing
- Difficulty Getting Out of Bed
- Irritability, Anxiety & Depression
- Labored Breathing or Periods of Not Breathing while Sleeping
- Nightly Trips to the Restroom
- Morning Headaches
- Need to Sleep with Head Elevated
- Neck Size Over 15" for Women & 17" for Men
- High Blood Pressure
- Hyperactivity
- Cardiovascular Issues
- Gastric Reflux or Heartburn
- Erectile Dysfunction
- Diabetes

THE RESEARCH...

- Oral Appliances are indicated for use in patients with mild to moderate OSA who prefer them to CPAP therapy...or severe patients who fail treatment attempts with CPAP.
- CPAP and Oral Appliances equally reduce symptoms associated with OSA.
- Patients that use an Oral Appliance report over 90% compliance.
- Over 46% of patients are non-compliant with CPAP.

You have treatment options.

Jolie comes clean

The October issue of Vanity Fair magazine features none other than Angelina Jolie (right) and her perfect pout. In the interview, she clears up a few rumors: No, she's not pregnant. No, she's not adopting right now. And no, she and Brad Pitt are not planning a secret wedding. What she is doing is working on "In the Land of Blood and Honey," a film about the Bosnian war that she wrote (while sick with the flu and quarantined from her six kiddos) and directed, due out in December.

Not again, Jen
If you think you've seen photos of Jennifer Aniston wearing the same swimsuit over and over, it's because you have. "I'll wear it for as many years as the strings still tie," Aniston says in the new issue of Glamour. "Bathing suits now have so much hardware on them that they singe your skin."

Who wants the tape?

Remember Kim Kardashian's sex tape with Ray J from, like, 50 years ago? Now some mystery person wants to buy the rights to it so it can be taken off the websites where people pay to view it, CNN reports. A Nashville attorney said a "private party" is interested in the rights. Kardashian's rep did not respond to CNN's request for comment. Hmmm.

Canadian bikin'

Looks like Justin Timberlake and Jessica Biel (above) are on again, but who can ever tell with this couple. In the latest installment of "As the Bielerlake Turns," the two were spotted Sunday taking a bike ride together in Toronto, people.com reports. Yeah, kinda hard to read anything into that. GETTY IMAGESFILE PHOTO

Nice buns!

The Foo Fighters' U.S. tour is sure to be crazy, but we're guessing it's nothing like their new promo. The YouTube vid, titled "Hot Buns," shows the foursome getting wet and wild in a truck stop shower—complete with soap on a rope and, yes, their bare buns. The Foos already made their Chicago stop with an Earth-shaking Lolla performance, so they won't be back again in 2011.

THE DIGIT

That's how much box office ticket sales are expected to rise over last summer, according to hollywood.com. Looks like a boy wizard and some Chicago-crushing robots can expect some thank-you cards.
